

The General Practice Podcast LIVE: The Future of General Practice

Thursday 15th March 2018

Park Crescent Conference Centre 229 Great Portland Street, London W1W 5PN

General Practice is changing. The profession is currently in crisis; there are insufficient GPs, the needs and wants of the new generation of GPs are different from the older generation, and the mounting financial challenges are driving experienced GPs away. This, coupled with a changing NHS landscape, including new models of care, the rise of STPs and a requirement for 7 day working, is determining a new future for general practice. But what will that future look like? How exactly will the changes to general practice take place? The aim of this conference is to find out.

Specifically, we will be exploring:

- How the model of General Practice is already changing
- The future impact of new roles and technology on General Practice
- Whether operating at scale, or in new models of care represents the future of General Practice
- What the route map over the next 10 years is likely to be for General Practice
